10 THINGS YOU CAN DO FOR TRASH FREE SEAS

SHIP WRECK -PALISADOES, KGN.

Saturday, 21 September

TEAM AAJ / NMIA turned out in large numbers to actively support INTERNATIONAL COASTAL CLEAN-UP DAY. The day was dedicated to helping to create a solution to the problem of solid waste and litter. Through our partnership with Jamaica Environment Trust & National Environmental Planning, we all made a sterling contribution to assisting behavioural change and practices that create debris. For more information on how you can get involved in this worthy cause go to: <http://www.oceanconservancy.org/our-work/international-coastal-cleanup/>

Caught on camera :
MEMBERS of the NMIA NETBALL TEAM

STOOPING (L-R) - Shanique Roberts and Akeem (son of Kemeka)

THE FASTEST MAN ALIVE— Usain Bolt, made a quick stop at the NMIA recently to star in a special film project, shot on location.

Shhhhh...I can't say too much about this—but it has something to do with the promotion of the JAMAICA Bobsled team.

Of course he was amazing on set, he's Dr. the Honourable Ambassador Usain St. Leo Bolt OJ...watch out HOLLYWOOD !!!

The feature film goes viral soon.
More anon.

The Sprint King shared camera time with NMIA Marketing & Corporate Communications Mgr.—Grace Morrison

RANDY FENOLI (TLC Star of 'SAY YES TO THE DRESS') was warmly received at the KINGSTON PINEAPPLE LOUNGE / NMIA, as special guest of KINGSTON BRIDAL WEEK

He wasted no time in cooling down Jamaican style—with a coconut jelly and paused for the shutterbugs at his personal welcome sign in the Arrivals lobby.

I think we have a new convert...he promises to return to our beautiful City very soon.

NMIAL Business Development Consultant—Tasty Blackman was on hand to welcome Randy and share in his beverage of choice.

KNOW YOUR AERODROMES :

TINSON PEN - Kingston

The Tinson Pen Aerodrome is sandwiched between the Kingston sea port to the south and the communities of Majesty Gardens and Union Gardens to the north and Greenwich Farm to the east. Despite not being located in as picturesque a setting as its sibling aerodromes, Tinson Pen serves a desperately needed utilitarian function. The Tinson Pen Aerodrome has been the training ground for most Jamaican pilots operating in the Aviation Industry today. Many pilots will fondly regale you of their adventures as youngsters learning to fly at the Tinson Pen Aerodrome with the well respected pioneer of Jamaican Aviation, Mr. Carl Barnett in the early years and Capt. Errol Stewart in the early 2000's.

In addition to serving as an incubator for future aviation professionals, Tinson Pen aerodrome serves as a home for other aviation based operations, including courier operators and aircraft maintenance and management services. Tinson Pen has also served as the home base for the expansion of the business jet sector of the industry with a number of the business jets operating in Jamaica based at the aerodrome.

From inception in the 1950's, base of operations at the location, namely Jamaica Air Service in the 1960's, Trans Jamaica Airlines in the 1970's, Air Jamaica Express in 1990's and Jamaica Air Shuttle in the 2000's.

TINSON PEN : Entrance to Main Terminal Building

Tinson Pen has always maintained its position at the forefront of General Aviation in Jamaica due to it's being the largest of all the aerodromes in the island and the starting point for such local aviation pioneers as the Flying Club, a group of wealthy aviation enthusiasts who went on to assist in search and rescue missions prior to the inception of the Jamaica Defense Force Air Wing; and Wings Jamaica Ltd, the first flight school in the island. Additionally, the Tinson Pen Aerodrome has provided the ideal location for the development of domestic air travel with many companies over the years having a

Despite the negative impact resulting from the suspension of Jamaica Air Shuttle operations, the Tinson Pen aerodrome continues to provide for the younger generation, an environment to fulfill their dreams of flight and immersion into the aviation industry through the two aviation schools currently in operation. The quality and volume of students being produced is an indicator that there are bright years ahead for the industry and the Tinson Pen Aerodrome.

SYMBOLIC HAND OVER of KEY to the RENOVATED NMIA POLICE STATION

KINGSTON, Jamaica / Wednesday, September 04, 2013

Minister of National Security, Peter Bunting and Commissioner of Police, Owen Ellington received the keys to the newly renovated Norman Manley International Airport (NMIA) police station in Kingston. The keys were handed over by NMIA CEO, Earl Richards.

The expansion and improvement works, costing $23million, was funded by Norman Manley International Airport Limited (NMIA)/Airports Authority of Jamaica (AAJ), included extensive refurbishing of offices, bathrooms, interview rooms, changing rooms for police officers, and a kitchen/canteen, among other areas. The project was undertaken in three phases over approximately 12 months. "The team here is satisfied with the facilities that are provided as it will enable the officers to serve more efficiently," CEO Richards said.

For Police Commissioner Ellington, the renovation comes at a time when the Jamaica Constabulary Force "deems it necessary to improve on police monitoring at the airport, as criminal elements, those who threaten our nation's security and well-being, attempt to engage in criminal activities such as illegal trafficking of narcotics through our ports."

Minister Bunting said the refurbished station was expected to contribute significantly to enhancing the airport's overall safety and security, as well as provide an "appropriate" operational environment for the police officers.

"We understand that for an airport to be globally competitive, it needs, not just to be safe and secure, and difficult to traffic contraband through, but it also has to be an enjoyable experience for your clients, your customers, who are the passengers going through," the minister contended in his remarks.

He urged the officers, under the command of Superintendent Natalie Burton, to demonstrate a high level of output and professionalism "that will make the NMIA feel that their investment was an excellent one and will encourage them to make further investments".
